REGIONAL DIRECTOR'S RETREAT

Join us for an engaging two-day training event featuring esteemed national speaker Janet Bartnik, tailored to empower parks and recreation professionals at the director and assistant director levels. This program will concentrate on fostering and enhancing connections with internal teams, local community members, and elected officials. You'll discover effective approaches for collaborating with community groups, committees, councils, and boards, while improving your capacity to communicate with a wide array of stakeholders. The sessions will also delve into how to establish meaningful relationships that extend across the state, the nation, and beyond as Utah prepares to host large scale events like NRPA and the Olympic Games. Participate in dynamic round tables and workshops and benefit from a panel discussion with local partners in tourism and economic development. Additionally, you'll refine your skills in promoting and advocating for the crucial benefits of parks and recreation. Don't miss this chance to elevate your impact within your community!
